Revised ISC Statutes and Rules of Procedure

Draft #1, 31 October 2023

Prefatory remarks

Following a consultation with Members at the Membership Meeting in May, a 'zero draft' of the statutes was shared with the members on 11 August 2023. Two consultation meetings were conducted to accommodate different time zones, on 26 and 27 September. Written feedback could be submitted by 8 October and we accepted and considered late submissions.

Twenty-one Members submitted substantive written comments. As it was not specified that the feedback might be shared, it will not be circulated, rather a summary of the types of feedback received and the response of the Working Group is provided below. The Working Group has done its best to reconcile sometimes widely divergent views on key issues of membership and voting, and also to address requests for clarity of concepts and suggestions on language and style.

Thereafter follows the first draft of the revised statutes and rules of procedure, which tries to integrate as much of the feedback as possible without losing the spirit of the revision.

Cluster	Response
Membership - Need for more clarity in categories	With input from the secretariat, the Working Group has made the definitions of the four categories of members and definitions of membership Concern about the risk of fragmentation of science through admitting new Category 3 voting members. 	more precise, clarified the distinction between category 3 and 4 and also introduced additional and detailed safeguards against fragmentation and dominance by parts of the world or the science system.
 Concern about domination of richer parts of the world in a changed voting system
 Voting rights Concerns about changes to equal weighting of Cat. 1 and 2 votes Suggestions to change voting 	Equal weighting of the collective votes of Cat. 1 and Cat. 2 members is re-established for scientific and constitutional matters, with room for Cat. 3 members to have a vote.
systems and dues systems more radically (e.g. to a flat one-member, one-vote) - Concerns about changes to the voting system on scientific matters	The Working Group encourages the ISC to test this new formulation allowing for Cat. 3 voting members and Cat. 4 non-voting observers.
Election process for officers and ordinary members of the Governing Board: - Wide range of comments, from support for endorsement of a full slate of Board members (i.e. no voting), to preference for a shortlist of candidates for all positions on the Board.	The Working Group had sympathy for both extremes (a full slate of Governing Board members for endorsement versus multiple candidates for every position). It believes that the ISC should move towards a full slate, given the nature of the organization and the need to ensure diversity and the right match of competence, but recognizes that this may need to be done gradually. It therefore offers two options for the selection/election of officers and two options for the selection/election of ordinary members and asks the ISC secretariat to organize a straw poll in advance of the finalization of the revised statutes to gauge members' readiness for these proposals.

It reminds the membership that the responsibilities of the Nominations and Elections Committee (NEC) are extremely important and it highlights that the composition of the NEC has been adjusted in such a way as to better represent Cat. 1 and 2 members, giving them the majority of membership. The Working Group encourages the Members to have trust in the NEC to put forward the right people for the roles, particularly as regards officers.

Diverse:

- Inflections of the mission statement, to emphasize promoting scientific collaboration, especially among ISC members
- Observations about principles and values to be applied throughout the document
- Demand for intersessional membership meetings
- Concern about status of Standing Committees
- Language/style

A definition of science has been added.

The mission statement has been adjusted.

The dimensions of diversity have been expanded, but do not pretend to be comprehensive.

An intersessional membership meeting two years after each ordinary session of the General Assembly is seen as desirable.

The Working Group recommends that only those committees which are integral to the operation of the organization be enshrined in the statutes, namely the Committee for Freedom and Responsibility in Science and the Committee for Finance, Audit and Risk.

The language has been reviewed, but the final language edit will be done once the content has been fixed and the document has been legally reviewed.

2. The Council was created in 2018, following the merger of the International Council for Science (ICSU) and the International Social Science Council (ISSC). ICSU was created in Brussels in 1931, following the dissolution of the International Research Council. ISSC was created in Paris in 1952 by the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization (UNESCO).	 The Council was created in 2018, upon the merger of the International Council for Science (ICSU) and the International Social Science Council (ISSC).¹ Footnote 1: ICSU was created in Brussels in 1931, following the dissolution of the International Research Council. ISSC was created in Paris in 1952 by the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization (UNESCO). The Council is legally instituted as an association under the French law on associations of 1 July 1901.
3. The present legal domicile of the Council is in Paris, France, where the headquarters of its secretariat ('Headquarters') are located. Any change of the location and the legal domicile of the Headquarters will be decided by the General Assembly. It will be incorporated under the law of the country in which the Headquarters are domiciled.	 The legal domicile of the Council is where the Secretariat is located in Paris, France. Any change of the legal domicile of the Council must be approved by the General Assembly.
II. Vision, Mission and Values	II. Vision, mission, principles and values
4. Vision The vision of the Council is of science as a global public good.	5. The vision of the Council is of science as a global public good . The word science refers to the systematic organization of knowledge that can be rationally explained and reliably applied. It is inclusive of the natural and social sciences as well as the humanities. ² Footnote 2: The ISC definition of science is in line with the UNESCO definition in its 2017 Recommendation on Science and Scientific Researchers (Section Iai):

Knowledge derived from scientific research is a staple of human understanding and creativity. It is fundamental to the evidence that should inform societal decision-making and public policy. The importance of deliberative scientific understanding to society has never been greater, as humanity grapples with the problems of living sustainably and equitably on planet Earth. It is therefore vital that we safeguard science as a global public good. Scientific knowledge, data and expertise must be universally accessible and their benefits universally shared. A mutually supportive global community of science carries responsibility for this by ensuring inclusivity and equity, including in opportunities for scientific education and capacity development.

5. Mission

The mission of the Council is to be the global voice of science. The Council seeks to provide a powerful and credible global voice that is respected both in the international public domain and within the scientific community. It will use that voice at the international level to:

- Speak for the value of all science and the need for evidence informed understanding and decision-making
- Stimulate and support international scientific research and scholarship on major issues of global concern
- Articulate scientific knowledge on such issues in the public domain
- Promote the continued and equal advancement of scientific rigour, creativity and relevance in all parts of the world
- Defend the free and responsible practice of science.

i. the word "science" signifies the enterprise whereby humankind, acting individually or in small or large groups, makes an organized attempt, by means of the objective study of observed phenomena and its validation through sharing of findings and data and through peer review, to discover and master the chain of causalities, relations or interactions; brings together in a coordinated form subsystems of knowledge by means of systematic reflection and conceptualization; and thereby furnishes itself with the opportunity of using, to its own advantage, understanding of the processes and phenomena occurring in nature and society;

Science may be considered a global public good in as much as knowledge derived from scientific research is a staple of human understanding and creativity and is fundamental to informing societal decision-making and public policy. Science and scientific understanding are central to the endeavour to live sustainably and equitably on planet Earth. It is therefore vital that science be safeguarded as a global public good. In general, and within certain limits necessary to protect the integrity of science and the scientific enterprise, scientific knowledge, data and expertise should be universally accessible and their benefits universally shared. A mutually supportive global community of science carries responsibility for this by ensuring inclusivity and equity, including in opportunities for scientific education and capacity development.

6. The mission of the Council is to be the global voice for science.

The Council seeks to provide a powerful and credible global voice that is respected both within international and jurisdictional public and policy domains and within the scientific community. It will use that voice to:

- a) Speak for the value of all science and the need for evidence-informed understanding and decision-making at all levels, from local to global;
- Stimulate and support international, interdisciplinary collaboration, particularly among ISC members, on scientific research and scholarship on major issues of global concern;
- c) Articulate scientific knowledge on such issues in the public and policy domains;
- d) Promote and assist in science diplomacy, particularly where it advances the common good and addresses global challenges;
- e) Promote the continued and equal advancement of scientific rigour, creativity and relevance in all parts of the world;
- f) Assist the scientific community and relevant stakeholders in their respective

6. Values

In fulfilling its role, the values that the Council will uphold in its work, its governance and its partnerships include:

- Excellence and professionalism
- Inclusivity and diversity
- Transparency and integrity
- Innovation and sustainability

7. The Principle of Freedom and Responsibility in Science

The free and responsible practice of science is fundamental to scientific advancement and human and environmental well-being. Such practice, in all its aspects, requires freedom of movement, association, expression and communication for scientists, as well as equitable access to data, information and other resources for research. It requires responsibility at all levels to carry out and communicate scientific work with integrity, respect, fairness, trustworthiness, and transparency, recognizing its benefits and possible harms.

In advocating the free and responsible practice of science, the Council promotes equitable opportunities for access to science and its benefits, and opposes discrimination based on such factors as ethnic origin, religion, citizenship, language, political or other opinion, sex, gender identity, sexual orientation, disability or age.

- roles in the conduct of science and in the face of the evolution of science systems.
- g) Defend the free and responsible practice of science.
- 7. In fulfilling its role, the values that the Council will uphold in its work, governance and partnerships include:
 - a) Excellence and professionalism
 - b) Inclusivity and diversity
 - c) Transparency and integrity
 - d) Innovation and sustainability

- 8. The Principles of Freedom and Responsibility in Science

Note 1: These paragraphs are being reviewed by the Committee for Freedom and Responsibility in Science.
